10139NAT - Course in Indigenous Mentoring

This course is for both Indigenous and non-Indigenous participants who have life experience and knowledge.

www.carhds.org.au

About the Course

This course has been developed to provide culturally practical tools and techniques to assist formal and informal Mentors. It will assist you to support Aboriginal employees to see possibilities, problem solve and retain employment. Mentoring in a cultural context is a vital skill to develop and the benefits to a Mentor-Mentee relationship can be rewarding for individuals and organisation.

Who delivers?The course is delivered by experienced Aboriginal Mentors.The course has been developed, designed and will be delivered by an experienced Aboriginal Mentor.

Who can attend?Anyone who is directly or indirectly involved in working with or mentoring Aboriginal employees. This course is for both Indigenous and non-Indigenous participants who have life experience and knowledge.

How long? We need 5 days to deliver, assess three (3) units of training. This may be delivered as 3 days then 2 days or delivered as 5 consecutive days. There will be take-home activities to complete as part of training and we encourage people to complete most of their assignments and assessments during class-time.

Which 3 units?

1. INDMEN001 Mentor Indigenous workers for job retention.
2. CHCDIV001 Work with diverse people.
3. CHCCOM002 Use communications to build relationships.

What will I receive once competent?A Statement of Attainment for the three units.

Is this cross-cultural training? No. This course will provide you with practical skills, tips and techniques to use with Aboriginal employees and trainees in a cross-cultural workplace setting.It will assist you to operate in a cultural security context.

How will I be assessed? The assessment book has case studies, questions, role-plays and research activities. Participants will undertake two (2) supervised mentor sessions.

About Us

Who is CARHDS? Based in Alice Springs NT, the Central Australian Remote Health Development Services Ltd is a community controlled RTO who have been established since 1997 and an RTO since 2001. We deliver accredited training including ATSI Primary Health Care, Foundation Skills, Mentoring and up-skilling to registered Aboriginal Health Practitioners. We also deliver and develop non-accredited training contextualised to meet the workplace including community governance, presentation/training skills and LLN tools.

What is a USI? A Unique Student Identifier is a 10 character long identifier that will give you access to an online VET training account.From 1 January 2015, registered training organisations are required to have a valid USI for a learner before they can issue a Certificate or Statement of Attainment. Go to www.usi.gov.au to obtain a USI before registering.

INTERESTED? Contact us today - we can deliver Australia-wide. Call us on Ph: 08 8953 5500

© 2019 CARHDS

Testimonials

"This course reminded me that looking at the surface is not enough. Taking a deeper dive into areas that are usually skimmed over in relation to Aboriginal people is vital to build meaningful work relationships, and a kinder world."Annie, Clinic Manager

"I have been involved in mentoring for a while now and I found that the course gave me a logical framework and reference to work from. I particularly liked the tools that I will be able to share with trainees." Gina

Australia-wide training designed, developed and delivered by Aboriginal Educators.